

REGATTA AT AN END

Twelfth Annual Celebration Closed Last Night.

IT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Immense Crowds Enjoy the Last Day of Carnival—County Fair and Dog Show Are Attractive Features.

By virtue of sheer contrariety which operates in climatic affairs as well as human, the weather yesterday, the last day of the big regatta, was simply superb, flawless, and wholly of the sort that should have prevailed Thursday and Friday, to accentuate the perfection of the now famous "Twelfth Annual."

Queen Esther was driven to the grand stand under escort of the Admiralty and Court, and was given a rousing welcome from the swarming host on the piers. She embarked on the customs launch Patrol for her morning cruise, with the strains of Brown's splendid band floating over the waters to her and her merry servitors, as they traversed the glassy reaches of Astoria's magnificent bay; and when she had got beyond the reach of plaudits the crowd settled down to the pleasures nearer at hand and especially devised for their entertainment.

The single-sculling race between Gloss and Patton was a very pretty event, Patton being sent to the course with a minute and a half leeway, and Gloss start seemed to the intent witnesses on shore that his task was a hopeless one, but the science and endurance of the man, measured for his success, and Gloss was recorded winner by 17 seconds, amid the encores of the onlookers.

While the sculls were flying over the course, Spencer and Anderson were doing a nimble turn at log-rolling and creating any amount of interest and fun for the people. Spencer went to the river twice, thus reversing his record of Friday, and Anderson came ashore victor in both the contests of the morning, which were done without intermission.

The flagship furnished a lively event yesterday, when she sent two of her fine cutters forth in a race over the 1 1/2 mile course. The boats were manned by five men and a coxswain each and were differentiated by the black shirts and white shirts worn by the respective crews. The pulling was sturdy and even, and the race was very close, only a boat's length separating them at the finish. The prizes were turned over to the captain of the Heather for the proper award. It was, in its way, equal to the sport put up by the Dogalia's boats on Friday morning.

The Chinook Indians put up another race with their tribal canoes and gave some expert exhibitions in the maneuvering of these frail and cranky craft, which proved them entire masters of the vessels. They went over the regulation course, with a capsize finish, and the awards were left to the Indians themselves to adjust.

The minor sports in front of the grand stand lost none of their zest by repetition. Iver Ross took the prize in the tub race away from George Beard, and Beard again captured the red, white and blue from the out-board end of the long greased pole; and the water polo contest was rehearsed with much amusement for all concerned, those on land as well as the lively youngsters in the water.

The double pleasure boat race was taken, hands down, by Boost and Patton, their competitors having other things to engage their attention for the last half of the pull, mostly the seats of their boats.

The gasoline fishboat race was a pretty one, and the interest in it was maintained to the last round, Driscoll the winner receiving an ovation at its close. This, with a fishboat tug-of-war off the grand-stand, closed the water engagements of the regatta season, and the huge crowd turned to the city for such further entertainment as the day held for them.

The clamoring demands for lunch had to be met and knife-and-fork contest was on for a full hour and a half, but no report has been vouched the press as to winners, losers, scores, nor stakes, in this general action.

The afternoon of yesterday was devoted by the sight-seeing crowd to the Farmers' Fair and Stock Show, the Clatsop County Bench show, and the Country Dance pavilion on Twelfth street. The pigeon shoot which was advertised to come off at 3 o'clock was, for ample cause, postponed until this afternoon at the A. F. C. grounds, when it will be pulled off with some star gunmen in attendance and some fine records to be made.

The Farmers' Fair was thronged all day with big crowds of deeply interested people, whose pride in the fertility of old Clatsop's soil, and the skill of her farmers and dairymen, is unabated. It developed to the point of proven patience, that the quarters in which it was held were no where near large enough for the free circulation of such throngs as met there yesterday, and this might be said of the bench show and the stock enclosure; none of them were adequate to the demands for comfortable space, a fact that goes far to prove how popular each and all were. The juxtaposition of the fair and the dog show made it possible for the congestion to be broken once in a while, but in spite of inconvenience, there was no cessation of visitors until the closing hour of the day itself. The committees in charge of the several elements of the county fair will hand in their reports of awards as soon as may be, but quite too late for press notice this morning.

Clatsop county has proven her right to claim the best bunch of dogs in the state of Oregon, considering her scope and population, and the committee in charge is entitled to all praise for the thorough success of the bench show. There were "three score and ten" fine animals on exhibition there yesterday, from Great Danes to Fox Terriers, and all the smaller fry in the way of home pets and lap dogs. The patient and handsome animals were recipients of all sorts of "coddling" at the hands of the ladies and children and seemed to enjoy it thoroughly. There were fourteen classes in view, and the judging was done under the direct supervision of W. B. Fehheimer of Portland, than whom there is no better authority on dogs and their points in the State. He took his own time and made detailed examinations on all the specific signs that go to mark the breed and status

O. I. Peterson, Dr. Jay Tuttle and J. F. Miller were the presiding officers at the big display of horses on the Fourth street grounds, and they had their hands full, as were those of D. M. Stuart, who had charge of the fine bred cattle at the same exhibit. The crowd was immense, good-natured and eager for results, and they came in due course, as follows:

Horseshoe draft team, Prael & Eigner; best brood mare, Prael & Eigner; William Larson, second; colts, William Larson first; William Hartill, second; stallions, George Warren, first; R. M. Worslen, second.

Cattle—Jersey bull, 2 yrs. and over, first, Olof Erickson; second, Robert Math; Shetlands first and second, Josiah West; Jersey cow, C. W. Flanders. This was the limit of the report in this behalf yesterday, but there is more to come, and will be published in the next issue of the Astorian.

The really beautiful flower display in the fair hall, which has been such a source of pleasure during the regatta, called forth the following awards from the capable committee, consisting of Mesdames C. W. Fulton, T. A. Hyland, and Miss Emma C. Warren:

Best collection of potted plants, professional, Erickson's Smith Point nursery; best collection of potted plants, amateur, Mrs. Brooks; best collection of cut flowers, amateur, Mrs. E. A. Beard; rarest collection of dahlias, Mrs. C. A. Lieneweber; largest collection of dahlias, Mrs. P. C. Warren; best collection of asters, Mrs. Olof Erickson; special mention, Golden Banded Lily, Mrs. Bartoldus.

One of the pleasant phases of the afternoon exhibitions at the new court house, was the splendid band concert given by Brown's famous band. It is far too seldom that Astoria has the benefit of such an aggregation in her public service, and the people made good use of the blessing at hand, and hung upon the rich tribute poured forth by the master players under the masterly leadership of Professor Brown. During the rendering of the long and brilliant program an Edison recording machine was stationed nearby and every note uttered by the band was transcribed upon the delicate waxen records fixed to receive them, and to prove the efficiency and accuracy of the transposition, every time a musical score was finished by the band, the Edison man turned the records loose and his machine verified the taking of the piece, without a flaw in the process. It was intensely interesting and engaged the crowd for a long time.

The Farmers' Fair committee is very desirous that all persons having exhibits in the hall shall call for them tomorrow, as it is necessary to restore the room to proper shape before turning it back to the county.

The Farmers' Fair will be kept open today from 1 o'clock until 5, in the afternoon for the benefit of all who want to see again the large and interesting line of exhibits.

From the cooling hours of the afternoon until nearly midnight, the young people made the most of the Country Dance at the pavilion on Twelfth street, and there were some happy times there for those to whom a dance is almost as bread and meat. The pavilion has served a good purpose during the regatta, and would have been sorely missed by hundreds had it not been provided.

And thus closes the twelfth attempt to entertain the summering world by the City of Astoria, and the close brings with it the pleasing assurances of full and genuine success. It has entailed an immense amount of patient labor and skillful application of brains and funds in the achievement of what will be known as one of the record-regattas, and the city, the committee, and the thousands of visitors for whose pleasure it was organized, will bear witness to the final fact of its unqualified and prosperous issue.

The Astorian is in receipt of the following communication from a well known citizen, who has the courage of his convictions of the right sort, when it comes to saying a good word for his city and her institutions:

"Editor Astorian:—In looking over your County Fair (I understand it to be the second in the past 50 years) I think you have much to be proud of. Your showing for the county is still in its infancy and susceptible of extraordinary development. Day by day, and year by year, you grow stronger.

"Your producers are the ones to come in now and declare that Clatsop county is to be represented by the county and its annual fair is to be the chief feature of that representation. The rivers and forests yield us their tribute when we bring labor to bear upon them; and the farm is also always with us, with its labor and its rich compass. Hereafter it must be 'The County Fair and the Regatta,' not 'The Regatta and a County Fair.'"
